

HYDE IS DOOMED

ALREADY, HE SAYS

Unless He Can Be Tried in Some Other Region Than
This County.

SAMPLES COMMON OPINION

Reports a Prevalent Idea That He Is a "Damn Crook"—Seeks
New Venue.

Former Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde, whose trial on an indictment for bribery is set for next Tuesday, served notice on District Attorney Whitman yesterday through John B. Stanchfield of a motion for change of venue. Affidavits by Hyde and Israel Tilden, Jr., a law student, and a big book of newspaper clippings accompanied the notice. Mr. Hyde's plea is that public opinion has been so inflamed against him that if he is tried here "my doom will be sounded before the first taleman is called." He backs that up with impressions gathered by Tilden, who was sent out to sound public opinion. Tilden asked hundreds of people what they thought about Hyde. The answers submitted are pretty unanimous and include the terms, rascal, robber, crook, damn rascal and damn thief.

"Ever since the month of October, 1910," says Hyde in his affidavit, "every newspaper circulating in New York and Kings has been publishing about the articles of the most scurrilous and defamatory character. I have been the object of a most bitter attack, and I have been held up to public obloquy, contempt and disgrace. My personal character has been vilified. I have been accused of almost every conceivable crime short of murder. My connections, social, political and legal, have been scandalized. I have been made the butt of sarcasm and my every act, private as well as public, has been reviewed in the public prints in such a manner as to place me in a false light to the end that public passion and prejudice should be aroused against me."

He says he finds that there is an almost universal feeling that he is guilty not only of the particular crimes for which he is indicted but also of crimes for which other persons have been indicted, tried and in at least two cases found guilty (Gleichen and Cummings). The newspapers, he says, have tried to convey the impression that he was equally guilty with those men. He doesn't think he could get a fair and impartial trial in New York county.

"In view of the inflamed condition of public opinion," he says, "the trial will be a travesty of justice." He goes on to say that innocent things have been converted into dastardly crimes and I have been held up as a monster of depravity, as a demon devoid of moral sense and as a crook whose sole desire has been to employ his public trust to his personal ends. My conduct has been prejudged and my guilt has been predetermined."

He says that the name of the Mayor has been dragged in and he is convinced that he has been made the channel through which an attempt could be made on the Mayor, whose friend he has been for forty-three years.

"And I add," he continues, "that this is the reason back of the newspaper persecution which has been directed against me. My indictment presents more than the case of the ordinary public official accused of a crime. It is in reality an indictment of the present administration, and everything that is possible to create a prejudice against the present administration has been done. The fact that I was the custodian of public funds has been played upon to arouse in the minds of the taxpayers a sense of personal loss by reason of my official actions."

Mr. Hyde figures that only 40,000 persons are eligible for jury duty in New York county, but such cases as his are tried generally before special jurors, whose total number doesn't exceed 2,000. He says that the millions of newspapers issued here daily must have swamped this small body with prejudice against him.

He brings up the indictment and trial of Senator Frank Gardner for bribery in connection with the alleged race-track find at Albany, and says that the newspapers did everything they could to make it appear that Hyde helped raise the yellow dog fund at a dinner at Delmonico's to defray the anti-race-track bill by bribery or otherwise.

"The result," he adds, "that my name was constantly before the public in this connection down to the acquittal of Mr. Gardner on February 21, 1911, and in spite of the acquittal of Mr. Gardner I have discovered that even to-day there is a strong belief that he was guilty and that he was the paid agent of the persons who were charged to have been indicted at Delmonico's, among whom I was mentioned. My photograph has been published so often that people in the streets recognize me and frequently I have heard remarks as I passed by."

Hyde says in the affidavit that the legislative graft investigation commission which sat on the Delmonico party and other matters didn't tell him he was wanted as a witness in the race-track matter and that counsel told him, in fact, that he wasn't wanted. So, having suffered from kidney trouble for three years, he went away to rest. That was the celebrated voyage of the Stop-a-While down

SAW A REAL SANTA CLAUS.

Congressman Bartlett Mystifies Wife and Children and They're Still Guessing.

RENO, Nev., Dec. 26. Congressman George A. Bartlett gave his family a surprise on Christmas. He had telegraphed from Washington that it would be impossible for him to spend Christmas at home and the message had saddened the Bartlett home.

Mr. Bartlett arrived here early Christmas morning, and going into a hotel near the depot donned a complete Santa Claus costume that he had brought with him, called a cab and soon appeared in front of his home in red regalia, long white whiskers and both arms laden with bundles.

Mrs. Bartlett opened the door and curiously eyed the stranger as he passed her into the house. She did not recognize him, and he did the little ones, who were elated and shouting in excitement at the sight of a real live Santa Claus, unsuspecting that he was their own father, supposed to be 2,500 miles away.

Not a word did Santa utter, in fear of disclosing his identity, but he motioned all to an upper room after pretending not to be familiar with his surroundings and put the gifts upon a table. Then he distributed to them what he had brought all the way from Washington, shook hands all round and left the house.

Returning to the hotel he relieved himself of the disguise and was soon at home again hearing his wife and children relate the startling visit of Santa Claus. "We have not the slightest idea who he was," the mother told him.

ARMS LANDED IN HAITI.

Intended for Santo Domingo, but Got Off Their Course a Bit.

This wireless dispatch was received yesterday by the United Wireless Company's plant at Sheepshead Bay from the steamship Prinz August Wilhelm of the Atlas service of the Hamburg-American Line, five days out of Kingston and New York, five days.

A prominent party of Haytians, including three Generals, arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, on December 26, reports that a cargo of arms, including machine guns and twenty cases of ammunition on the Haytian coast. These arms were to be delivered to the revolutionists in Santo Domingo and were intended to fill the unexpired term of the arms service of the Haytian frontier by mistake, as the captain of the schooner lost his bearings.

Already the revolutionists have asked the Haytian Government not to intercept the arms, as the Haytian troops are now in pursuit of the party, which is rushing the arms toward the frontier of Santo Domingo and there is every likelihood of their capture within the next twenty-four or thirty-six hours.

There was no word in the revolutionary junta district about Beaver and Stone streets yesterday of the departure from this port or any other neutral haven north of Florida of any schooner load of arms for the late Dominican revolutionists, nor could any one hazard a guess why a gun running schooner captain should take on a Haytian frigate instead of land his cargo of war munitions in Santo Domingo unless he thought it was about time to market a cargo of contraband arms with the other half of the fighting West Indian Siamese twin.

The latest reports of December 15, had it that the revolution in Santo Domingo under former President Morales had been smothered and that Elio Victorio, who was elected to the vacant term of the assassinated President Caceres, had secured himself with a comparative degree of stability upon the trick Presidential chair of Santo Domingo.

ALL HIS NAMES AT SEA.

The Skipper's Son Was Born on the Ocean Wave and Lives There.

Perry Edwards, aged 10, who was born at sea and has spent all his Christmases afloat, hoped to get here in time to celebrate his seventh Christmas on land, but he missed connections by a day. He arrived yesterday with his mother, Mrs. Alice Edwards, by the Hamburg-American line steamer, the Santa Lucia, which was on its way to New York from Jamaica. They were until a few weeks ago in the employ of the American brigantine, the Motley, which because of heavy weather on her way from Mobile to Porto Rico with a cargo of lumber, was forced to put into Great Inagua in the Bahamas for repairs. Capt. Edwards sent the little boy and his mother from Kingston committed to relatives in Elmhurst, hoping they would get there in time for Christmas dinner.

In the stress of nearly three weeks the Motley lost most of her canvas and sprang a leak that kept all hands at the pumps for several days. Mrs. Edwards prayed a part of the time and when she was not praying she was encouraging the men at the pumps. The little boy just looked on and being familiar with storms seemed not much concerned about the final result. Mrs. Edwards has lived aboard the Motley eight years and has been in many ports and several oceans.

RIOT BARY TO WED.

Girl Whom French Art Students Adopted to Be a Bride.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN. PARIS, Dec. 26. Lucie Bagarre, the "heroine" of the students' riots of 1903, is engaged to be married to a baker.

This announcement to-day recalls the stirring times which followed the students' Quat-Arts ball in that year. Sarah Brown, the famous model, arrived at the ball as Venus draped in a fishing net. The police attempted to interfere and the students resented what they called the unnecessary intrusion of the officers. A pitched battle followed in the streets, which were barricaded, and an open riot was soon in full blast. Some persons were killed and wounded.

After quiet had been partly restored an infant was found in the streets and the students adopted it and gave it the name of Lucie Bagarre, because the French word for "girl" was Lucie and the word for "baker" was Bagarre. The girl was educated by the students and became a clever milliner. It is her engagement that is announced to-day.

Poor Sarah Brown, the model, died from the effects of a chill.

MET. TO BE SOLD ON FRIDAY

BONDHOLDERS WILL BUY IT AND INTER-MET WILL RUN IT.

Mr. Shonts Will Be President and the Aim Will Be to Please the Public—Name of New Company Not Determined Yet, but "Metropolitan" May Be Dropped.

The Metropolitan Street Railway Company will pass into the hands of the bondholders of that company day after tomorrow, and the receivership which began on October 1, 1907, will thus be terminated. The new company to be formed under the reorganization plan will shortly thereafter assume possession of the property.

Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, will be president of the new company. As the majority stockholder the Interborough-Metropolitan will control the board of directors and the effect will be that the Interborough-Metropolitan will after the first of the year assume the operation of the surface lines of the Metropolitan system. Not only will Mr. Shonts become the president of this new company to operate the surface lines, but arrangements have already been completed whereby some of the operating heads of the subway and elevated systems will perform similar duties for the surface lines. A financial saving as well as greater efficiency is expected to result from this plan, the details of which have not entirely been worked out.

One of the details yet undecided is the name which the new company is to bear. Metropolitan Railroad Company is one of the names suggested, but there is a feeling on the part of those who will control the destinies of the new company that the name Metropolitan might possibly call up too many unpleasant memories and that it would be a good thing to get away from it. Another name which has been suggested is the New York Surface Railroad Company.

Under the latest order of the Circuit Court the Metropolitan Street Railway Company will be sold at foreclosure at noon on Friday, at which time the committee representing the holders of the 5 per cent. and 4 per cent. bonds will bid it in. The upset price fixed by the court for the entire property is $12,000,000. $10,000,000 for the property represented by the 3 per cent. bonds and $2,000,000 for the property pledged under the 4 per cent. bonds. There will be two distinct sales, one of the property covered by the first mortgage and the other of the property behind the 4 per cent. bonds. When these parcels were put up at auction in June last no bidder appeared, the reason being that the organization plan upon which a joint committee, headed by Guy E. Trippe, had been working had not then taken shape.

There is nothing now to interfere with the reorganization plan, and the first step of this is the bidding in of the property by the holders of the bonds. All but about 30,000 shares representing not over 5 per cent. of the stock have been deposited under the terms of the reorganization plan. The time for such deposits expired last Saturday. It is expected that those refusing to pay the assessment of $12.50 a share will be even smaller than this. This means that the Interborough will pay in about $2,500,000 of the $3,000,000 of new cash required. Representatives of that company were not ready yesterday to announce what plans they have formed for raising this money, but it is said that arrangements have already been made with a banking firm to borrow part of the money with the new stock as security.

For each $12.50 paid in a stockholder will receive $12.50 in bonds and $20.00 in stock. Under the terms of the sale the bondholders bidding in the property have the right to retain possession of it for six months. Counsel for the bondholders committee said yesterday that while it could not be definitely stated that the new company will be formed in time to take the property off the hands of the bondholders by January 1, yet it would certainly be within a few days of the date. Interest yesterday largely centered in the operating management of the new company to be formed. While the streetcar was for some time in the office of Mr. Shonts as to who the new officers would be, it can be stated that men like Mr. Hedley are to be included among the new officers. Mr. Hedley is in charge of the subway and elevated lines, and everything possible to please the public is to be applied with equal vigor to the management of the surface lines. Whether he will continue with the new company or not will be learned yesterday. Mr. Root himself refused to discuss the matter. Conferences were held in Mr. Shonts's office at 165 Broadway with the new officers of the Metropolitan and the future operation of the surface lines. One of those assisting Mr. Shonts in working out the details is Herbert H. Vreeland, president of the Metropolitan up to the time of the receivership. Mr. Vreeland for some time has been acting in a consulting capacity on transportation matters.

Since the Court of Appeals handed down its decision in the Third Avenue reorganization case no move has been made to secure the consent of the Public Service Commission to the new Metropolitan reorganization plan. The commission had been holding hearings on the proposed plan and was about ready to give its consent when it was suddenly notified by the counsel for the bondholders' committee that it was off for a time being. It was about a week before the Third Avenue decision came down. The decision practically stripped the commission of all respect to its respect to financial affairs over new companies growing out of reorganization. Technically, it may be seen that the new plan would have to be laid before the commission, but this decision the commission apparently will have to give its approval. At least this is the way the commissioners themselves have construed the decision.

Judge Lacomb decided in the United States Circuit Court yesterday that these properties are not subject to the mortgage of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company made on March 21, 1902. Dry Dock, East Broadway and Battery Place Railroad Company, Forty-second Street, Manhattanville and St. Nicholas Avenue Railroad Company, Kingsbridge Railroad Company, Second Avenue Railroad Company, Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets, Cross-town Railway Company, Third Avenue Railroad Company, Union Railroad Company, or the claims which the Metropolitan has against the Central Park, North and East River Railroad Company.

YALE ACTOR ALMOST HANGED.

Trap Is Accidentally Sprung and Knot Tightens Under Ear in "Devil's Disciple."

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 26. Members of the Yale University Dramatic Association, who arrived here to-day from Salem, Ohio, and presented the Bernard Shaw play, "The Devil's Disciple," at the Nixon Theatre this afternoon, say that Irving G. Beebe, who plays the title role, almost met death in the hanging scene last night.

While Mr. Beebe was standing in the shadow of the gallows in the execution scene the trap was inadvertently sprung. The noose around his neck proved more effective than was intended and as he dropped the knot tightened under his left ear. William Lambie of Pittsburgh held Beebe up when it was seen he was choking until others could slacken the knot.

The Yale players had a crowded house here this afternoon for their performance. The scene was a dramatic one and the play was chocked with automobiles and carriages of the Yale alumni and their families. After the performance the players were entertained at dinner by Mrs. George E. Tener of Sewickley and at a dance afterward at the Edgewood Club. They left at midnight for Columbus, Ohio.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY HERE.

Landon Bates, Jr., Decides to Test One Election District on It.

Landon Bates, Jr., president of the Republican Club of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, has written to the enrolled Republicans of the Sixth election district of the Twenty-ninth asking them to notify him by postal card if they desire a Presidential primary prior to the election of delegates to the Republican national convention.

"This direct Presidential primary," says Mr. Bates, "gives you the chance to elect the driving nation—the driven wheel of political action—if you choose to take it."

The normal vote of the district is estimated at 150 Republican, 107 Democratic, 100 Independent. The statement sent out by Mr. Bates names the following as among the residents of the district: Otto T. Barnard, W. Emory Roosevelt, James Talcott, Robert C. Morris, former chairman of the county committee, William Chivers, Victor Morawetz, Adolph Lewisohn and Eugene Seligmann.

The district includes the Navy and Plaza hotels and the Metropolitan Club. The voters are also asked "Whom do you regard as the best Republican candidate: Taft, Roosevelt, Hughes, La Follette? Most formidable Democrat: Harmon, Wilson, Underwood?" and to make suggestions on the same.

MT. HOLYOKE PUTS BAN ON PLE.

Faculty Won't Let Girls Have Apple Dumplings for Luncheon Either.

SOUTH HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 26. Pie is under the ban at Mount Holyoke College. The faculty has prepared a surprise for the girls when the latter return from their Christmas holidays. There is to be no more mince pie on the college tables. The apple dumpling also gets the faculty hook, so to speak.

By this means the faculty will try to keep the girls awake after luncheon. It is hard to see how the faculty could dispense with mince pie. Mount Holyoke girls fairly die on mince pie for luncheon. They will go a good way for apple pudding, but mince pie, according to the faculty and boarding house bosses, is the mainstay of the collegiate luncheon.

Recently professors and instructors have noticed that the girls come in for 2 o'clock recitations sleepy and sluggish. They fail to show the keen, sparkling interest that a girl should in Greek, roots and analytical philosophy. The professors couldn't understand it, but when they all talked it over it was reasoned that as the girls became sleepy right after luncheon there might be some cause in the luncheon menu. Inquiry developed that mince pie made up the larger part of the college luncheon. Apple pudding ran a close second.

Sidney W. Winslow, president of the girls will wake up," said the faculty, and so the order has gone forth.

SHOE MACHINERY RUMOR.

Officials Refuse to Discuss Report of Reorganization Under Federal Supervision.

BOSTON, Dec. 26. No member of the executive committee of the United Shoe Machinery Company would make a direct statement to-night in answer to the report that the concern was going to be reorganized under Government direction without the suit which Attorney General Wickersham has instituted here being brought to trial.

One of the committee, Wallace F. Robinson, said that he had not heard anything about such action being taken, but as he was not very active in the company there might be something in the report, still he hardly thought it possible. Another member of the company, who is under indictment on conspiracy charges, but who does not care to have his name mentioned, would not say yes or no to the question about a reorganization under Government supervision. He said: "You know what the reputation of the company is, you know that there is a Supreme Court, and you know that Mr. Wickersham cannot settle this question, and you can draw any conclusion you like from what I say."

Sidney W. Winslow, president of the company, was not at his home in Beverly to-night, when called on the telephone. There is no disposition on the part of the men who are defendants in the criminal action or in the civil action for the disclosure of the shoe machinery company to be interviewed by reporters.

KOENIG OUT AGAINST MERRITT

SAYS HE HAS TOLD BARNES SO AND SUGGESTS DANA.

State Chairman Will Take No Sides in the Matter—Assemblyman Dana, Who Has Been Seeking Support Up State, Confident Merritt's Beaten.

Samuel S. Koenig, president of the Republican county committee, made it known yesterday that he is opposed to Merritt for Speaker of the Assembly. He got a letter from Assemblyman-elect S. C. Crane chiding him for not dealing vigorously with "what appears to me to be a crisis in the affairs of the party" and saying that in Mr. Crane's opinion Mr. Merritt's public record "stamps him as unfit for the office he seeks and as totally unrepresentative of the best sentiments and aspirations of the Republican party." This further statement was made by Mr. Crane:

It is well known that the effort to secure an adequate investigation of legislative corruption following the conviction of Aldis was delayed and thwarted by Mr. Merritt, then floor leader in the Assembly, and that the resolution finally passed was weakened as a result of his efforts. He became chairman of the investigating committee thereby created and emerged from the performance of this duty without credit, his committee proposing a supposed remedial enactment which became the laughing stock of the State.

Mr. Crane suggested that a more fitting candidate than Mr. Merritt would be Andrew P. Murray of the Nineteenth district or Charles A. Dana of the Twenty-seventh.

Mr. Koenig's reply, made public yesterday, says:

From the time that Mr. Merritt announced his candidacy for the Speakership I have been opposed to his election. I so stated to William Barnes, Jr., the chairman of the Republican State committee. Recently I repeated that statement to him, and of these facts I advised you and the other New York county Republican Assemblymen who were present at the conference on Friday. Prior to that conference I had taken steps to obtain the extent of the opposition to Mr. Merritt and to learn of likely candidates for the Speakership. It was my hope that the New York county Assemblymen would view the matter as I did and would unite on some suitable man other than Merritt. For that reason immediately after election I urged you and the others not to commit yourselves.

In spite of the criticisms against the candidacy of Mr. Merritt that appeared in the New York city press and the public opinion that in private conversation was expressing itself sentiment on the part of the New York county Republican Assemblymen in favor of any suitable candidate. Accordingly I called the New York Assemblymen together in conference in the hope that, faced with the situation, they would offer a practical suggestion for dealing with it. I found that the assemblymen had no fixed opinions, and even you yourself were not positive in your views, and that Mr. Murray, whom you suggest as a possible candidate for Speaker, declined the honor.

In my opinion you can best aid in carrying out the views which I have all along held and which you now I am glad to know, hold so strongly by doing your utmost to secure the unanimous support of the New York Assemblymen for Mr. Dana or some other suitable candidate.

Assemblyman Charles A. Dana, who has been on a trip up the State seeking support for his candidacy returned yesterday and said he was confident that Mr. Merritt could not count on a majority of the 101 Republican members of the Assembly. "In making this fight against Merritt," he said, "I am not actuated by personal ambition and I will withdraw at any time that a candidate is produced upon whom the majority of the Assembly will unite."

Mr. Dana said there would be a conference at Albany next Tuesday afternoon of the Assemblymen who would oppose the selection of Mr. Merritt, and he predicted that the number of members who would attend the meeting would be no larger than there would be no real attempt on the part of the Republican caucus at night to force the choice of Mr. Merritt.

Chairman William Barnes when asked by telephone at Albany last night concerning the Speakership situation replied: "I have taken no sides in the matter and shall take none whatever. The caucus of Republican Assemblymen will elect the Speaker and no man in the State of New York or outside of it can get me involved in any controversy over that subject."

Mr. Barnes will not be in New York this week. Assemblyman Merritt's friends at the Murray Hill Hotel last night said they believed that Merritt already has secured a majority of the 101 members of the Assembly. Most of the Republicans believe that William H. T. Eryck of the Bronx will be elected clerk. There is a struggle going on between Assemblyman Hinman of Albany and Assemblyman Young of Westchester for the place of floor leader.

JOHN D. CUTS OUT SPEECHES.

Tells Church Folks He Quit Because Too Much Publicity Was Given to Them.

TARRYTOWN, Dec. 26.—John D. Rockefeller was asked to address the Sunday school children of the First Baptist Church at their Christmas tree exercises in the church to-morrow night, but he said he could not do so because of too much publicity. He would like to speak before the children, he said, but too much publicity was given to his remarks and he had decided to cut out all addresses.

But Mr. Rockefeller told his superintendent to pick out the finest Christmas tree he could find on the Pocantico Hills estate and send it to the children. This was done to-day. Mr. Rockefeller also furnished all the Christmas greens for decorating the church.

FEAR MASSACRE BY TURKS.

Christians at Mersina and Adana in Asia Minor in Grave Dread.
